Project Management

Prevent Delays with Planning and Management

Court Square approaches every project using a proven methodology, regardless of the size of the client's organization or the length of the project. The entire Project Management Office (PMO) has been trained to incorporate PMI guidelines to ensure best practices in project management. Court Square is adept at overcoming a project's inherent challenges and follows a structured methodology to ensure comprehensive and timely communication throughout the project.

The Court Square Project Manager is responsible for producing standard communications and tracking tools for each project. All projects are begun using Court Square's CAPE methodology of Capture, Assess, Plan, Execute. This approach increases the consistency of delivery as well as maintaining a focus on the project scope.

Project Management Services

The PMO is closely involved in all Court Square services. Project Managers may lead a team of Court Square consultants, client representatives or a combination of the two. Specific examples of services include

- Technology project management
- Business project management
- Life Sciences projects including application package selection and implementation

A PMO for your own organization

The Court Square PMO can work with a client to develop a PMO within their own organization. Court Square will identify resources within an organization or help recruit outside skills. A plan will be developed with the client for the creation of processes, training and overall project methodology. The result will be a disciplined approach to every project at the client's site with a staff trained in project management best practices.

Finally, the Court Square PMO is available as an ongoing managed service. Court Square will work to develop the right level of project management service to support the planned programs on an annual basis while serving as project lead for all client programs. Our PMO will help scope the projects and plan the project timing and implementation to support business goals without disturbing daily operations.
